

Helping Change the World

Djiba Camara is a teacher at H.D. Stafford in Langley but the driving passion in his life is to help others, especially those in his former home in Conakry, Guinea. Djiba had a very successful life here and in Europe as a professional soccer player and coach, but the suffering and the starvation in his home country is driving him to give back.

In 2013, Djiba initiated and completed his first “Drop Off For Africa” project—collecting donated supplies and then shipping them to his home country and overseeing their distribution. Few international charities work in Guinea because it is so difficult and dangerous. Djiba experienced first-hand how big the obstacles were in seeing his “Drop Off For Africa” through to completion. Yet the need was so great, and the result so worthwhile, that Djiba came home more motivated than ever to do more.

However, shortly after he returned, Djiba was diagnosed with cancer hindering his efforts for a follow up project. Yet even after numerous surgeries and ongoing cancer treatments he remains committed to helping his people and continues to try and raise the $20-25,000 needed to ship another container full of supplies to Guinea.

As a church, we want to help Djiba achieve his dream for Guinea so this year the proceeds from our Community Block Party & Garage Sale will be going towards this project.

Donations can be made through Eagle Ridge Bible Fellowship (designated: "Change the World - Guinea") or through the Langley School District Foundation ("Drop Off For Africa").
